Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Bountiful Bouncer

Cleveland, April 14 (AP)—Joseph Sinjur, proprietor, was grateful to bar customers last night for helping him evict an inebriated patron. Too late, however, Sinjur discovered the fat wallet containing $200 they "returned" to the patron had dropped out of Sinjur's own pocket—not the imbiber's.

Strings Attached

Miles City, Mont., April 14 (AP)—A trade was made here, but there were strings attached.

When Sofie Talarski came home from work she found that her table model radio had disappeared. A guitar was left in its place.

Unlucky Friday

Thermopolis, Wyo., April 14 (AP)—Draft board members and several other Hot Springs county residents looked at Friday the 13th on the calendar, and sighed.

Thirteen men were inducted.

Isn't Cricket

Spokane, Wash., April 14 (AP)—Police Reporter Joe Doolittle thought it would be easy to get a good story on a hearing in which he was a witness.

But, to avoid prejudice, witnesses were barred from the court when not on the stand. So the only testimony he heard was his own.

Really Wants One

Salt Lake City, April 14 (AP)—Marine Sgt. Charles M. Hayes, recently returned from the Pacific area, has gone all out for a home.

He distributed 1,000 handbills asking for a "statside foxhole."

The Search Continues

Milwaukee, April 14 (AP)—Fifty pounds of butter fell from a truck driven by Harold Storm, a pound or two at a time.

The score:

Found on the highway by Storm—three pounds.

Squashed by automobiles—Seven pounds.

Missing—40 pounds.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 14, 1945

GREATEST TRIBUTE

The entire nation grieves at the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose sudden end shocked the civilized peoples of the world. All freedom-loving people will mourn his loss.

His presidential career stretched over turbulent years of peace and war and into a period of planning for a lasting peace among the nations of the world. In order to formulate war plans, he attended international conferences on a scale never before seen in history. Burdens as heavy as ever were borne by an American President were saddled on President Roosevelt when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

As Commander in Chief he performed his services valiantly to the very end. His physical departure will be felt but the memory of his strength and courage and personal sacrifice will be an inspiration to those who must carry on.

And there remains work which must be carried out. The war must be finished in Europe and in the fight against Japan and the peace machinery must also be completed.

President Harry S. Truman must now take up the burden.

The greatest tribute that can be paid to the memory of President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the loyal support of all the people to the new President in the trying days ahead.

SPRING OF 1945

The middle of April is upon us and Spring has definitely established itself. Kingston is a gayer and greener place. More people are pulling out their walking shoes and bicycles, taking to the country roads. The soil is turned for the summer gardens and the Jamaican farm helpers are on their way back. Children emerge with skip ropes, skates and chalked hopscotch boxes: all welcome signs of a welcome season.

But Kingston's springtime reaches far beyond Ulster County this year. Our sons are seeing the signs of April in the mounting monsoons of China and Burma. And on Okinawa Spring has brought only added heat and mud to a coral island that rises from a hostile ocean. April raises the tides and changes the strategy; it means in the Pacific not the sight of children shooting marbles, but a new kind of advance through the muddy jungle.

Spring is perhaps more beautiful for those of Kingston's sons on the other face of the world. Some are seeing the bursting leaves of chestnut trees along the Champs Elysees in Paris. But for many more, Spring lies in the coal-mining country on the road from Cologne to Berlin. Still others are feeling the torrents of sudden April rain in Northern Italy as they fight the slow and bitter battle around the muddy paths of the mountain terrain.

Spring this year for many who once played baseball on sandlots in Kingston is a new season. It means to them a change in fighting, or a series of welcome cries shouted joyously along a new countryside in a foreign tongue. Perhaps next April will bring them home for a real welcome of a happy season.

CLEAN UP AND SALVAGE

Poor housekeeping is one of the major fire hazards.

So warns the National Fire Protection Association, sponsoring the annual Spring Clean-Up Campaign, now under way. The association asks housewives, while cleaning the house, to pack up rags, papers, boxes, old magazines, mattresses and furniture, and to turn them in for salvage. Hidden away in closets, attics and basements, or the garage, such materials bred many of the fires which last year attacked American homes at the rate of one every 90 seconds.

Home stored rubbish often the cause of spontaneous combustion and providing ready fuel to feed the spread of flames, is badly needed in the manufacture of many critically needed war materials.

So for self-protection at home, and to speed the day of victory abroad, clean up, clean out and salvage.

THE MORALS OF THE PEACE

Woodrow Wilson approached the peace from the lofty position of international morality. His Fourteen Points rejected expediency as his procedures rejected secrecy. He refused to build a world peace on vengeance and hatred.

Wilson's difficulties arose from the "realism" of his associates. The Treaty of Versailles contradicted the Fourteen Points and even the Covenant of the League of Nations. I need but cite one example, the Shantung Settlement by which irrefutable Chinese territory was given to Japan. It was this sort of "practical" settlement that ruined Wilson's moral ambitions.

Franklin D. Roosevelt misunderstood Wilson's difficulties and failure. Apparently he believes that Wilson failed because the Senate would not support him and that the Senate would not support him because it knew what was being done. Therefore, he pursues a course of secret diplomacy in an atmosphere of a leaking sieve. The peace conferences, no matter how numerous, deal with fragments of the subjects, disclose only splinters of decisions, and revolve about a secretive Triple Alliance which mirrors in process and motive Metternich's Quadruple Alliance that followed the downfall of Napoleon.

Mr. Roosevelt entered the war a moralist. His Atlantic Charter sounded a high note. Although it was a private declaration, as was Wilson's Fourteen Points, it was readily accepted because it offered a moral equivalent for war. He did not go so far as to reject war as an instrument for the settlement of international disputes, but he did recognize the right of every people to choose their own government.

As the European war proceeded to victory, Mr. Roosevelt was apparently faced with the necessity of appeasing his irreconcilable but practical allies. Deserting his moral position, Mr. Roosevelt went realistic, which means, in simple terms, that he accepted Stalin's boundaries and Keynes's economics. It meant ditching every moral consideration of the future for the appearance of success in the present.

San Francisco will not meet in the shadow of failure in the military war. Germany is defeated; Japan cannot possibly succeed. San Francisco need not appease anyone; it can afford the time and high purpose of fundamentally solving some of the problems that have kept this world at war since Napoleon. These problems are moral. They have to do with justice, with the rights of nations, with the rights of man, with the outlawing of war and even of military alliances and non-aggression pacts and secret treaties and secret commitments.

Herbert Hoover proposed positive standards among nations, for, in effect, a Bill of Rights, a moral charter for mankind. Senator Arthur Vandenburg, a delegate to San Francisco, also raises moral issues and proposes a code. Obviously, it is impossible to organize anything without positive objectives. The mere arrangement of an international society is insufficient. That society must have the objective, if it is to satisfy the popular longing for peace, of producing a moral substitute for war; it must contain the promise that the brutality and destructiveness of this war shall not be repeated.

Yet, all the problems that brought on this war are not solved. Many of the settlements made in secret at Yalta obviously cannot survive the moral indignation of mankind. Must we go to war over them or is it possible to draw up a Bill of Rights for Nations, as for the individual man, so that only criminal nations are predatory and make war? But before we can declare a man or a nation criminal, there must be a code of principles which they have broken. Dumbarton Oaks provides no such code; San Francisco must lay down the law or declare itself an impotent failure.

The objectives of San Francisco, to summarize, should be sincerely to explore the possibility of abolishing war, to create a code, a Bill of Rights for Nations, to recognize the Rights of the individual man to human liberty, to develop an atmosphere of abhorrence for military alliances, to encourage mankind to believe that civilization means not vengeance and hate but the brotherhood of man, of Cain and Abel, of the "peace-loving" and the "aggressor," for God's House is of many mansions and differing brothers may dwell in all them in peace, if only they recognize the law of the Father.

NERVOUS ENERGY

Most of us know about the great reserve power of the heart which is able to do many times its ordinary daily work should any emergency arise requiring hard work such as shipwreck, or an attack of pneumonia. What we do not know or remember is that the nervous system is the same as the heart in that it has reserve power for emergencies. And everybody today is having some strain on his nervous system, which is using up some of this reserve power.

In Proceedings of Staff Meeting, Mayo Clinic, Dr. F. A. Willius says that never before have people been subjected to the stresses, strains, and uncertainties prevalent today. "More people are working harder or longer and suffering more severely than ever before." This means that the energy used up under this great strain during the day is much more than the nervous system is expected to produce daily and so some of the "reserve" nervous energy must be used to enable the individual to do his daily work. When this extra strain continues for some time naturally more of the reserve power must be used and the uncertainty as to when the end will come makes matters worse. "The person worries and a state of tension develops which renders relaxation difficult or impossible and often creates insomnia or fitful sleep." Thus the individual uses up all his reserve nervous energy and lives day by day on just the nervous energy available for that day. And the unfortunate part about it is that much of this worry, tension, anxiety, fear, is needless and useless.

"A vicious cycle is started: worry leads to confusion, further uncertainties, anxieties, fatigue and even complete exhaustion. The person feels as tired in the morning as he did in the evening when he retired."

Because he is exhausted and his nervous reserve all used up, he can't think or plan properly and he begins to worry about the unimportant matters, aside from his fears for his health, his life, his family.

In the treatment of these cases the physician makes sure that no real ailment (mental or physical) is present, explains to the patient why his "nerves" are upsetting his stomach, heart or other organs and interfering with his mental processes, and prescribes more rest.

He'll Have a Big Readjustment to Get Used to Peace

Leaves From Notebook Of War Correspondent

By HAL BOYLE

Scholtheim, Germany (AP)—Two American soldiers on the road to Berlin halted long enough to play Cupid by arranging a marriage between a French slave laborer and a German girl.

"They stopped us as we were rolling through town and asked us if we would please help them get married," said Sgt. Gerald E. Herrnstadt, (610 West 142nd street) New York city.

"The Frenchman was Jacques Rousseau, 24, of Ligneville, France. He wanted to marry a German girl—she was named Erna Gindler and was 22 years old—because she had brought him food for the last four years while he was compelled to do forced labor.

"It was really a love match—and she was a real good-looking girl, slim and blonde. We told them that we would do what we could for them."

The Frenchman explained that they had tried repeatedly to get married but that the Burgomeister had refused to sanction the ceremony because such marriages were frowned upon by the Nazi party.

Finally, the local Nazi party bigwig agreed to let them marry. He granted his permission in a letter which stipulated:

"If a German woman sinks so low as to marry a Frenchman, the Frenchman must prove he is worthy of her by serving in the German armed forces."

But the German girl, called "swine of French" by her neighbors, refused to let her lover enter a German S.S. (Elite Guard) unit.

"If you do I won't marry you," she stated firmly.

That was the status of the case when the American Army arrived on the scene.

"Let's go to a priest," said Herrnstadt to Lieut. Richard E. Artschwagnern who lives at a village near Santa Cruz, N. M.

The priest agreed to perform the ceremony although the girl was a Protestant and married the couple at once.

Afterward, the happy couple took a handsome radio liberated from an overrun Nazi party office, as a wedding gift.

For their honeymoon, they moved right in the Burgomeister's apartment. The Burgomeister seemed very glad to do anything to oblige them.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt

Died April 12, 1945.

A great man lived, and died today,
In the service of his country.
He fought for the American Way,
Beyond the call of duty.

That every living soul might know
Freedom from doubt and fear,
God give us his strength against the foe,
And may we feel his spirit near.

This man, born to wealth and pleasure,
Yet knowing the hearts of the humble
Gave to the last full measure
That Democracy may never crumble.

May we keep the torch of Liberty brighter,
Keep free his native soil,
And in his name, win our fight,
So help us God!

I humbly submit this tribute to our beloved President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

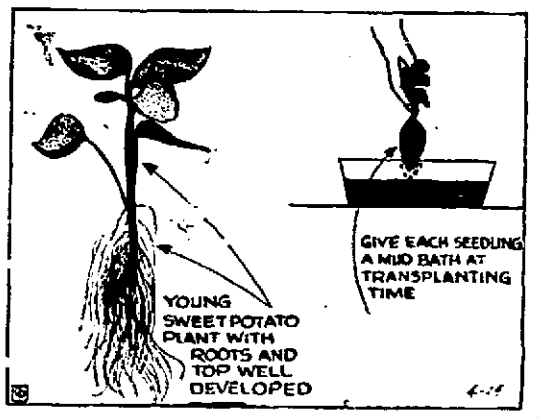
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Sweetpotato—A Poor Soil Crop

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

IF YOU HAVE an area in your Victory garden where the soil seems poor, or too sandy to be really fertile, try sweetpotatoes. The sweetpotato, being a native of tropical America, naturally thrives best in the warmer portions of the United States. Many Victory gardeners, in temperate zones, do grow them and successfully, for sweetpotatoes can be grown for home use under a wide range of conditions.

The sweetpotato being a tender plant should not be planted outdoors until after all danger of frost is past. The sweetpotato plants known as slips should be ordered early from a reliable seedsman or plant grower.

A young sweetpotato plant, with roots and top well developed, is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. When transplanting sweetpotato slips dip the roots of each one into a pan of prepared mud-water, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This process, called "puddling," covers the roots with a coating which not only prevents their becoming dry while being handled but insures a direct contact with the soil when the slips are planted.

Sweetpotatoes do not require a highly fertile soil, in fact they do best in a light, sandy soil. On very rich soils the crop tends to run to vines at the expense of the roots.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Kingston has always had an efficient mail service, and it is interesting to recall that George M. Brink, a well known cigar manufacturer of 129 Clinton avenue, served the city as its postmaster in 1900. The deputy postmaster was Edgar E. Oughletree, while George A. Plant was superintendent of the Rondout station, and George D. Boughton of Substation No. 1.

The present Central Postoffice building was not erected until a few years later.

The letter carriers serving out of the Kingston station were Otis C. Burr, Frederick Carpenter, John T. Cusack, Charles F. Lebert, John P. Clark and Harry T. Wheeler.

Working out of the Rondout stations were Carriers William C. Straley, Robert E. McCormick, Francis R. Wood, Leonard W. Kirchner and Charles D. Romeyn.

The substitute carriers in 1900 were C. Augustus Raschke, Clifford Wheeler and George Lebert.

The clerks in the Kingston office were John B. Newkirk, William Newkirk, Robert E. Carpenter, and Augustus H. Newkirk, special delivery clerk.

At the Rondout station the clerks were William Maynard, William F. Gronemeyer, John Tuskey and James H. Parish as special delivery clerk.

Following the death of Superintendent George Plant of the Rondout station, the late John P. Clark was appointed and held the post of superintendent until his death.

Turning from postal delivery to fire service the city had an all-volunteer fire department in 1900 with Michael J. Rafferty as chief engineer; John O'Shea as first assistant; James Murphy, second assistant; John E. Burhans, third assistant, and George S. Adams, fourth assistant.

There were 12 volunteer fire companies active that year in the city. They were: Rapid Hose, Cornell, Weber, Union, Cordts, Wiltwyck, Clinton, Excelsior, Weiner, Twaalfskill, Rescue Hook and Ladder, and Wiltwyck Hose and Truck Co.

In the nearly half century that has since elapsed there have been many changes in the city's fire department, and if some of the old volunteer firemen could arise from their graves they would rub their eyes in astonishment.

The first cross-country run staged in the city by the local Y.M.C.A. was on Thanksgiving Day in 1905. I remember it well for I was one of the participants and came in third. The winner was Louis Longendyke with William Apt, second. We were later awarded medals.

The course was from the old alms house, now the City Home, on Flatbush avenue to the "Y" building.

This was the senior race. In the boys' division first place was won by Alexander Clubb, with Isaac Bunting second, and Walter Powell third. They also were awarded medals.

W. W. Brundage was the physical director at the "Y" in 1905, and to my mind he was one of the best physical directors ever to serve the local association.

Leafing back the pages of the city's history to 1865, the old Ulster and Delaware railroad that year extended its tracks to Kingston Point and in 1896 the Hudson River Day Line started landing at Kingston Point instead of at Rhinebeck as in former years.

Translations from documents concerning ancient India show that in 2000 B. C. primitive soldiers went to war with equipment comparable to chemical warfare equipment a "deathful weapon flaming with celestrial fire," and a projectile "wrapped in smoke and flaming flashes, speeding from the circled bow."

Alencon is the southernmost town of Normandy.

Strange Part of Roosevelt's Death Is Feeling of Unreality It Gives One in Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 14—So accustomed is everybody in the national capital to thinking of Franklin Roosevelt as presiding in the White House that it is hard to believe that only his remains in a flag-draped coffin are there today.

Somehow most folks who have lived through officialdom's complexities these last twelve years had the feeling that elections might come or go but Franklin Roosevelt either would stay on in office or be the man behind any successor who might be chosen. He was conceded to be really the most powerful man in public life and, while he has been in poor health recently, most observers liked to think that somehow he would survive the most exacting cares—but they thought it only because he had done so again and again.

It is almost incredible to be writing that "F.D.R." is no longer here, that his engaging smile and his repartee with the press, his fireside chats and his terse, epigrammatic phrases of campaign debate have ended for all time.

Why was this so? Perhaps it was because of the remarkable personality which Franklin Roosevelt possessed and his rare capacity for making friends and melting away the opposition of many who differed with him. Perhaps it was because the global war had fixed his name in everybody's mind as the Commander-in-Chief and the leader of the democracies. His name is known all over the world—no other American President has been as widely known. For while Woodrow Wilson was a war president, his career was relatively short-lived. Year in and year out since 1939, the acts and utterances of Franklin Roosevelt have been broadcast to the four corners of the earth. The name Roosevelt has become synonomous with that of America in many lands.

This makes the task of any successor one of almost frightening responsibility. President Truman has a keen awareness of the place he must try to fill. He will not of course, be the same kind of president. There was only one Franklin Roosevelt and no one in our times probably will resemble him.

Yet the new President, though he is different and has another approach, can make a successful chief executive just the same. As a matter of fact Harry Truman is in a peculiar sense the average American much more than was Franklin Roosevelt. For Mr. Truman never went to college. He never had the advantages that come from being born well-to-do. Mr. Roosevelt, to be sure, brushed aside any feeling of class superiority and succeeded in achieving a quality of democracy that few men have attained.

But Harry Truman has been all his life a man of the people. He got an appointment to West Point and was rejected because of weak eyes. He wanted to go to college but his father had suffered financial reverses. He worked, therefore, first in the mailroom of a newspaper, then on a railroad construction gang, and later as a bank clerk. He then became a farmer and ploughed the fields of Missouri for ten years. In World War I he served in the artillery and saw plenty of action in France. He came out of the war a major.

Back home, Major Truman married a childhood sweetheart and went into the haberdashery business. But in the 1920's his store failed. He entered politics and served as a member of the Board of County Commissioner then County Judge, then United States Senator and last summer won the nomination for the Vice Presidency after a spectacular contest.

What a series of experiences to fit a man for the Presidency! Certainly Harry Truman learned his America from the ground up. He learned human nature and he learned the ways and thoughts of the average American freeman.

A President can be successful if he has the power of understanding. Harry Truman has that and he starts his administration with an invaluable asset—the confidence of both houses of Congress and especially of the Senate. He knows representative government. Cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of our government, essential in time of war but even more so in the transition period after the peace, may prove to be the outstanding characteristic of the administration of President Truman.

ERNIE PYLE'S COLUMN

Okinawa—(by Navy radio)—Our war with Japan has gone well in the last few weeks.

We are firmly on Okinawa, which is like having your foot in the kitchen door.

Our wonderful carrier pilots have whittled down the Jap air force daily. Our anti-aircraft from ships and from shore batteries has plugged Jap fliers for the highest ration I've ever known from ack-ack.

Our task forces have absolutely butchered the only Jap task force to put to sea in many months. B-29s are hitting Japan, with fighter escort from Iwo Jima. Airfields are springing up on Okinawa. We all say we sure are glad we are not in the Japs' shoes.

* * *

One main question asked over here now is, "How long will the Japs hold out?" There are all kinds of opinions, but actually nobody knows.

We don't know, because no one in his right mind can pretend to understand the Oriental manner of thinking. They are unpredictable. They are inconsistent. As one officer said, "They are uncannily smart one day, and dumb as hell the next."

Their values are so different from ours. The news broadcasts from Tokyo and Shanghai are an example. These broadcasts are utterly ridiculous.

During our first week on Okinawa they constantly told of savage counter-attacks when there weren't any. They told of driving a large part of our landing forces back to the boats and far out to sea, when actually they fired only a few shots onto the beaches.

On D-Day plus four, they broadcast that despite their counter-attacks we finally succeeded in landing 6000 troops. The truth is that by sunset of the first evening we had an incredible number of scores of thousands of Americans on Okinawa!

Everything that Tokyo said about us was a downright lie. Yet maybe Tokyo really believed it. No one can tell. The Japs don't think as we do.

* * *

The crippled Jap force cannot do us anything but spasmodic harm from now on. And their navy needn't ever be considered. If you could see the colossal naval power we have here you could hardly believe your eyes. It's one of the most impressive things I've seen in this war.

We have plenty of troops in reserve, and new convoys of supplies have already begun to arrive just as we finished unloading the original massive supply fleet.

* * *

On Okinawa the majority of the Japs are on the southern tip, and in considerable strength. The northern area is being bombed and a few scattered ones mopped up.

There is tough fighting in the south and it will remain tough to the end. I've heard some officers say the south end of Okinawa may turn into another Iwo Jima. That will mean heavy casualties on our side, but the end of Okinawa is inevitable.

And while the Army's 24th Corps of Infantry is doing that job, the rest of the island apparently is wide open for us to develop and we are doing it with our usual speed.

This island has everything we could want in such an island. There is plenty of room for more airfields, room for roads and vast supply dumps and anchorages for ships. And the civilians from whom we had expected trouble are docile and harmless.

The way Americans can build, this island can be transformed in two months. Before long it could look like Guam or Pearl Harbor. We are in Japan's back door and while we are here they can't really do very much to us.

* * *

Of course, Japan's vast land armies are all almost intact. But if it does come to the great mass land warfare of continental Europe, we now are able to build up strength for that warfare right on the scene.

There is a fighting spirit among us. People are conjecturing about the possibility of the Pacific war ending sooner than we had ever allowed ourselves to think.

For years it looked endless, but now you hear people talk about being home maybe by Christmas. Some really believe they will. Others have their fingers crossed, but they are more hopeful than ever before.

Instead of a war weariness, there seems to be a new eagerness among our forces to sweep on and on, and wind the thing up in a hurry.

Mendelssohn Club Features Lighter Music

Mendelssohn Club chose a program of lighter numbers for its concert this year singing many of the old favorites. The chorus of 38 voices about the same as in other years was well balanced and particularly well tuned one voice to the other. Dr. Elmer Tidmarsh conducted the group.

Frances Lehnerts as guest soloist sang with a great deal of expression. Her voice contains many deep rich tones while her upper tones are fluid enough for the patter of "Brindisi" from "Lucrezia Borgia" by Donizetti or for the encore number, "Sequidille" from Bizet's "Carmen." Dr. Charles Gilbert Spross, noted composer, was her accompanist.

The last number on the program was one of the most inspirational of all as the ensemble sang the "Seraphic Song." Rubinstein-Gaines with Miss Lehnerts singing the contralto solo and Anthony J. Messina, a member of the club, playing the violin obligato.

In tribute to the memory of the late President Roosevelt, Miss Lehnerts sang Schubert's "Ave Maria" as one of her encore numbers. The club also dedicated their singing of "Home on the Range," to the memory of the late President. This number was one of his favorite songs and Mendelssohn Club used the arrangement by their own conductor, Dr. Tidmarsh.

The two truly entertaining groups last evening were the Russian songs and the cowboy melodies. The first included all old favorites, the first being a choral arrangement of Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" in which the voices emphasized the immense familiar chords and melody. The second was the familiar "Song of the Meadow Land" with the sound effects of the horses and finally the spirited "Russian Sailors' Dance" from "The Red Poppy." This group was followed by the encore, "The Autumn Sea" by Gericke, an entirely different type of piece with soft, smooth melody line. The American cowboy songs in their slow, easy going rhythms were an interesting contrast to the Russian songs. In addition to "Home on the Range," the club sang "Carry Me Home to the Lone Prairie" which was repeated; "All Day on the Prairie" with a humorous final whistling chorus. As an encore the club did "Careless Love" in which the bass section took the melody.

The effective combination of voices, well tuned, was most noticeable in the calm "The Dreaming Lake" in "The Rosary" and naturally in the final, "Seraphic Song." As special tribute to their honorary member, Dr. Charles Gilbert Spross, the club sang his "How Many Times Do I Love Thee."

Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., played all of the accompaniments for last night's program.

Miss Lehnerts' program was interestingly varied. Besides the opera arias she sang a number of recital songs suited to her voice. Grieg's ever popular "I Love You" was sung first in English then in Norwegian. Her diction was fine and her versatile expression could be noted in comparing the songs of love stories told in "Tryst" or "Across Blue Agean Sea" with the entirely different story of the boy and his hobby horse in "The Hobby Horse" by Moussorgsky or the humorous Creole ballad, "Ah, Suzette, chere," or "Summertime" from "Porgy and Bess."

Her encores included, "'Neath the Southern Moon" by Victor Herbert and "Strange Music" from the current Broadway show, "Song of Norway."

Senior Girls Hear Talk by Dean Heath

Mrs. Raymond Heath, dean at William Smith College, advocated a liberal education for the girl of today and tomorrow as she spoke to the senior and junior girls of Kingston High School Friday afternoon. The program was an annual one sponsored by the Kingston College Women's Club to promote interest in higher education for girls.

In the first place she itemized some things which education should do for a person. It would train her for self preservation; develop interests and aptitudes and instruct in political and social life.

Speaking particularly for the Liberal Arts course in colleges, Mrs. Heath said that there had been rapid changes in the curriculum of these courses during the past 40 or 50 years. It now embraces languages, science, mathematics, history, politics and social studies. Through these one is better prepared to know herself and the environment, social and political structure in which she is to live.

Mrs. Heath was introduced by Mrs. Lloyd LeFever. Announcement was also made of the annual scholarship given by the College Women's Club to a senior girl. Those interested in entering the contest for the scholarship should write letters to the club explaining the college which has accepted them, some of the definite plans made for after college; financial status; and what college means to them. These letters are to be given to either of the following teachers: Miss Blanche Kirshenblum, Miss Blanche Heil or Miss Agnes Scott Smith, not later than May 4.

Following the meeting in the auditorium the senior girls were invited to tea in the school library. The table was decorated with a centerpiece of white and pink carnations and lavender stock. Mrs. Clifford Rose and Mrs. Lloyd LeFever poured.

Arrangements for the afternoon were made by Mrs. John DeWitt who was assisted by a committee of College Women's Club members. Sixteen members of the student body also assisted the committee. They were the Misses Lois Rider, Betty Weber, Arlene Zeilengold, Marjorie Osmers, Mary Dolan, Ruth Buddenhagen, Blanche Glass, Beth Sherman, Shirley McCuen, Nancy Halverson, Marion Palen, Marion Wilkinson, Wilma Bulivant, Gloria King, Flora Kramer and Marilyn Foster.

Mrs. Brinnier Heads Women's Club of 'Y'

Laidlaw, first vice president; Mrs. Clarence L. Dumm, second vice president; Mrs. R. Frederic Chidsey, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Beatty, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Raymond Woodard, treasurer.

An installation ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Woodard who read the duties of each officer as outlined in the constitution of the club. She also presented each with a corsage.

The annual reports of the secretary, treasurer and chairman of standing committees were given. Announcement was made by Mrs. Frederic Holcomb of the coming Y.W.C.A. Drive.

A book review, "Great Son," by Edna Ferber, was given by Mrs. Ward Brigham. Afterward tea was served with Mrs. A. W. Embree assisting by pouring. Arrangements for the tea were made by Mrs. James Rowe assisted by Mrs. J. Watson and Mrs. Edward Bonesteel. Mrs. Leonard Flicker was hostess for the day.

The next meeting will be the annual Spring luncheon, April 26. Reservations should be made with either Mrs. Raymond Craft, 1008 or the Y.W.C.A., 1911, not later than April 24.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Business and Professional Girls' Club Wednesday evening plans were formulated for the spring music program to be held early in May at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Geraldine McKay, vocalist, will be the guest artist.

It was also announced that the Counsel to Governor Dewey had acknowledged the telegram which the club had sent regarding the ferry service.

Harry R. Karnaghan of the Veteran's Service Bureau spoke on the "Return of the Veteran to Civilian Life." He described the mechanics of the local bureau which was founded in January, 1939 when such bureaus were authorized. In the past six years the local bureau has not only helped local veterans with their problems but has served as a model for other bureaus throughout the country. Mr. Karnaghan said that many veterans profit from the war in one way or another but whether they have problems or not it is to their decided advantage to consult the Veterans' Bureau as soon as they receive their discharge. All the various financial services and social benefits are there centered in one agency which helps the veteran or his kin to take advantage easily of these services and benefits due him.

Following the meeting the interest groups in bridge, choral work, dramatics and handicraft held their first sessions of the second series.

Next week is being turned over to the Board of Directors of the Y.W.C.A., who will hold the local convention to discuss the findings of the various study groups and plan the Kingston report to National Board of the Y.W.C.A. Home Relief Will Be Paid in Cash

Local Public Welfare Director Tells of Change in Plan

Effective May 1, the Department of Public Welfare of this city will begin providing home relief assistance in the form of cash rather than through vouchers, which have been previously in use.

Henry J. Fisher, director, explains the purposes as of the change from voucher to cash as follows:

This cash program is being inaugurated by the Department of Public Welfare for the principal purposes of better aiding those who are in need of assistance and of removing much delay for the merchants and landlords with whom our clients have had to deal. It has been our experience that assistance through food vouchers, rent vouchers, coal vouchers, and so forth has been extremely restrictive to people and has not permitted them to trade with merchants at places and at times when they can receive the greatest amount for their limited allowances. The plan for cash assistance will provide sufficient monies based on revised budgets which will include their normal expenses of rental, food, fuel, and so forth. It will be the responsibility of people receiving cash assistance to pay their own rents, to buy their own food, where and when desired, and to plan their modes of living in the same manner as they did and will when they had been and will again be self-supporting.

It will naturally be the responsibility of landlords and other vendors to collect from public assistance recipients in the same manner as they collect from other clients who are self-supporting. Merchants and landlords will benefit a great deal more through this plan because they can be paid in cash for all items of expense without waiting a month or two months to receive payment from the Welfare Department while vouchers and orders are being audited.

The success of the cash relief plan in the City of Kingston will depend on the cooperation of clients who are receiving such assistance and of the merchants with whom these clients will trade. The Department of Public Welfare will not therefore be responsible for any obligations that the clients incur without information and advice from both clients and vendors before the contracting of such obligations.

Ralph Kiff represented the Social Studies Department in the "A" assembly.

The War Today

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie)

President Truman and Secretary Stettinius have proclaimed "no change" in American foreign policy. There is one place where they may have a hard time making the proclamation stick.

Of all his personal diplomacy, President Roosevelt's policy regarding Russia probably depended more directly on him than any other.

Labels are likely to prove inaccurate. It may not be strictly correct to term the Roosevelt Russian policy as "co-operation at any cost," but it was very close to that and also was probably the foreign policy which drew more criticism than any other.

Entirely aside from those who always want to "get tough" when anyone fails to abide strictly by what Americans consider their country's ideals, there has been a more temperate expression of fear that by yielding to Russia on certain points affecting small nations, we have been storing up a whirlwind.

This "no compromise on virtue" attitude probably has been held in check, to a great extent, by a widespread knowledge that Roosevelt was far better informed on the subject than anyone else, that his motives were unquestionable and that there was no course except to trust him.

Roosevelt obviously thought that the maintenance of machinery for co-operation between the Big Three was more important than anything else. He not only seemed to feel that in yielding now he could hope for enlightened changes later, but he also acted personally as a moderator between Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill, the equator between which almost amounts to two poles.

Whether Roosevelt was right remains to be seen. He was conducting a campaign something similar to the one against isolationism in the United States. Russia's policy at best, is self-sufficiency against any enemy. Roosevelt could hope that once she felt herself out of danger she would co-operate in eliminating danger for all, and after that she might relinquish some of the hegemony over her neighbors that she now feels necessary. Those who disagree fear any compromise on principle, lest Russia learning what she can do by flexing her muscles, become insatiable.

Truman and Stettinius cannot expect, for a time at least, to enjoy the same public confidence regarding foreign affairs as did the Roosevelt-Hull team. Those who disagree with Roosevelt, but feel incompetent to go to the mat with him and his unique store of information, may now be expected to become more insistent.

"No change" may be a diligently guarded watchword. Whether it can be accomplished is another matter.

Scouts Postpone Scout-O-Rama Until April 28

The Scout-O-Rama planned for the State Armory tonight has been postponed until April 28. This decision was reached in a late afternoon conference Friday of the officials of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America.

It was originally planned to dedicate the Scout-O-Rama to the memory of President Roosevelt, but later it was discovered that practically all activities were being canceled in the various communities of the Hudson valley and the scout officials deemed it wise to postpone the Scout-O-Rama until Saturday, April 28.
